

Specific features of the abortions prevention in the modern society

*Y.V. Litvintseva, Lecturer, Department of Law, UO VFPB International University «MITSO»
www.yana2590@mail.ru*

Research methodology. With dialectical, sociological, system-legal and formal legal methods the most clearly negative side of the idea of abortion was formed, that opposites to the recognized constitutional principles of protection of motherhood and childhood.

Research findings. Provided and identified main reasons for forming the occurrence of the phenomenon in society such medical services as abortion. The features of a compromise solution to the problem of abortion, the socio-psychological, spiritual and moral development levels of civilized society were taken into account.

Novelty. Examined the actual causes of abortion, ensure achievement of performance in the issue of countering legitimizing infanticide in utero (prenatal) development. Suggestions regarding the settlement of the question of social and material support of women who are raising children could be considered as a variant of the resolution of complex problem. It has been established that it is the spiritual side of social development is able to set the benchmark for priority preservation of life of human embryos, including parallel and the family as a whole.

Practical relevance. Analytical author's approach this topic with a clear rationale allowed to delve into the problematic aspects and ensure multi-level explanatory theory-oriented approach regarding the issue of limiting the practical development and improvement programs obstructing abortion. Also on the basis of the proposed social project aimed to provide a guarantee to achieve socially determined standards of social well-being, affecting all sorts of vital human activity, taking into account the priority of the interests of the future, not yet born members of society.