

Evaluation of the enterprises' economic security level through the indicators of corporate social responsibility: innovative approach

V.S. Syrota, External PhD Student of Financial and Economic Security Management Department

“KROK” University

Veronika.syrota@gmail.com

Research Methodology. During the research the general scientific methods were used: a comparative analysis in the study of approaches to the enterprise economic security assessment; theoretical substantiation in the formation of an innovative approach to the evaluation of the enterprise economic security level, as well as a graphical method for the presentation of the interrelations between economic security and corporate social responsibility of the enterprise.

Results. The necessity of the search for new approaches to evaluation of the enterprises economic security was substantiated. The consideration of a number of existing methodologies of the economic security evaluation was conducted, their strengths and weaknesses were identified. The innovative approach to the evaluation of the level of economic security on the basis of indicators of corporate social responsibility of economics entity was offered. It will allow to improve the quality of the formation governance and provide the required level of economic security in today's dynamic environment of enterprise operation.

Novelty. Innovative approach to the evaluation of the enterprise economic security level was suggested.

Practical significance. The research results can be used by enterprises in the construction of the system of formation, evaluation and improvement of the economic security level.