

International acts on human and citizens rights and freedoms

M.M. Matskevich, Honored lawyer of Ukraine, Doctor of law, associate professor, professor of the constitutional, administrative and international law Chamber of the Ivano-Frankivsk University of law of King Danylo Galatskiy, vkoroli@ua.fm

Research Methodology: By means of formally legal method the peculiarities of normatively-legal regulation of human and citizens rights and freedoms were exposed. The use of anthropological method allowed to expose the essence of international acts in the field of human and citizens rights and freedoms as one of forms of the legal existence of individual.

Results: Provisions of basic international acts, that determine human and citizens rights, freedoms are analysed. The value of Universal declaration of human rights the principle bases of that is equality of legal status of human rights is exposed. The conclusion is that Universal declaration of human rights is one of the basic sources of law, serves as a model that is widely used by many subjects of law-making.

Novelty: Systematization of scientific works is carried out in relation to international acts in the field of human and citizens rights and freedoms. The idea is reasonable, that Universal declaration of human rights is one of the basic sources of law, serves as a model that is widely used by many subjects of law-making. The basic provisions of Universal declaration of human rights is exposed, that gives an opportunity to come to the conclusion, that positions of Universal declaration are incarnated in most constitutions of two last generations and in the laws of countries all five continents.

The practical significance: The analysis of international acts in the field of human and citizens rights and freedoms gave an opportunity to extend a scientific idea about their normative adjusting and international legal standards of human rights and will assist the optimization of the legislative process and increase the efficiency of the constitutionally-legal adjusting of human rights and freedoms in Ukraine.