

The formation of medical insurance in conditions development of the NEP in Ukraine

*A. Terovanesov, postgraduate student of Constitutional and International law Department, Donetsk National University
arsterov@yandex.ru*

Research Methodology: The systematic approach allowed to investigate the direction of medical insurance in the complex of problems of the social welfare of workers. Method of historicism revealed features of medical insurance at the stage of the New Economic Policy (NEP) dissemination.

Results: The peculiarities of the legislative base on health insurance were studied in the period of new economic policy in the post-war development of the state. The advantages and disadvantages of reformation of social sphere were investigated. It was established, that the policy of the NEP had a positive impact on the conditions of development of medical insurance in Ukraine.

Novelty: The features of development of the medical insurance's system in the 1920-th of the twentieth century were specified. Connection of medical insurance and social defense and dependence from economic development of the state were reasonable. The necessity of study of legal relationships of medical insurance in the historical-legal aspect was proved.

The practical significance: This research allows objectively investigate medical insurance during the formation of the NEP. This paper extends the scientific base in the sphere of medical insurance. The study of medical insurance in the historical aspect allows to reform this field in the modern period of social development. The study of the reasons of social reform in the early thirties of the twentieth century is needed on the modern stage of development of the state.