

The identity of the head of the private security company and its impact on the socio-psychological climate in the team

Y. Vitomsky, Ph.D., chairman of public organization “Safety and Innovations to Educational Institutions” vitomsky@mail.ru

Methodological bases of research. By means of comparative and system approach it is investigated professionally significant qualities of the head of the private security company on which the favorable social and psychological climate in collective depends. The methodology of the identity of the head is proved by works of scientists in the field of psychology G. Andreyeva, V. Myasishchev, B. Parygin, K. Platonova. Methodology of the identity of the head G. Andreyeva proved by works of scientists in the field of psychology, V. Myasishchev, B. Parygin, K. Platonova.

The received results. Professionally significant qualities of the head of the private security company on which the favorable social and psychological climate in collective depends were defined. The style of work, personal behavior, the attitude towards people, care of them the head influences formation of social and psychological climate in collective. For the head the arrogance, neglect, roughness, incompetence is especially inadmissible.

Scientific novelty of research is that regulations on expediency and an orientation of vocational psychological training and professional development of heads of the private security companies gained further development.

Practical value of research is that the conclusions and offers formulated in work can be used in a vocational education according to programs of course or individual preparation, professional development in “Management of financial and economic safety”.

And also in work of the practical psychologists who are carrying out psychological maintenance of activity of employees of the private security companies for the purpose of increase of its success.