Research methodology: Using a systemic approach based on determining the content of political rents and using international indices the evaluation of this phenomenon was carried out. The scale of political rent in Ukraine was assessed using a rating method.

Results: The notion of “political rent” was determined and its trend in Ukrainian economy was defined. The assumption to assess the political rents based on indexes of international organizations was implemented.

Novelty: A methodological approach to the analysis of political rent using relative indexes was offered. The analysis of the political rent in Ukraine by the use of indices of international organizations was conducted.

The practical significance: Based on defined interpretation of the term “political rent” the method of its calculation using the codes of international organizations was offered. The scale of changes in the political rents in Ukraine, which is the theoretical basis for the formation of anti-corruption strategy, was studied.
