Research Methodology: Using the systematic approach the issues of nationalization in the world were explored and the peculiarities of its application in different countries were revealed.

Results: The opportunities and the needs for measures of nationalization as a way of withdrawal of Ukrainian industry from the crisis were analyzed. The estimation of the process in terms of international and domestic legal framework was done. Taking to account the current state of the domestic industry, the nationalization as a way to renewal and growth of the Ukrainian economy for public purposes was proposed to consider.

Novelty: Modern economics does not provide comprehensive coverage and solving the problems of economic development in the system of state economic security. The issues, that particularly require constant research, is the ratio of the share of public and private property in the economic structure, transformation and optimization for their sustainable economic growth.

The practical significance: On the basis of world historical experience, of international and domestic legal frameworks, the current state of the industry, proposals for feasibility mechanisms of institutional transformation of private property for the purpose of ensuring the sustainability model of multiculturalism of national (mixed) economy, particularly towards the expansion of the public sector through nationalization were justified.
