

The state and tendencies of development of state innovative policy as a factor of economic security of economic entities

*Y.H. Bratytsia, Postgraduate student,
«KROK» University
Zhenya1234@bigmir.net*

Research methodology. Using the systemic approach innovation policy of Ukraine in the period of independence was analyzed. By economic and statistical methods, the current state of the system of state innovative security was evaluated.

Results. The modern state of innovative activity of economic entities was evaluated, and the factors that currently characterize the poor level of innovative security of the country were analyzed. The actions to improve the innovative environment and to ensure economic growth of the state were developed. The innovatization as intensive scientific and technological component of modern development and competitive performance was considered.

Novelty. The significant scientific and technical cooperation of the country was disclosed, it was justified that the financing of fundamental and applied research, as well as creating of the optimal environment for improvement of investment in science requires more attention from the state. Directions of improving of innovative security system, the use of which will lead to the systemic development of innovative activity and improvement of the level of innovative security of Ukraine.

The practical significance. According to the survey practical recommendations to stimulate research and innovation activities to ensure the rapid development of the economy and will be a base for improving the living standards of the population to change the negative component of the innovation policy of the country's observance of which will lead to the development of a system innovation and the innovative security of Ukraine, were offered.